

ENGLISCH

LEISTUNGSKURS

NEVER GUDE

Carl-Friedrich-Gauß Gymnasium Hockenheim

GitHub

j.gude@posteo.de

Contents

1	KOMMUNIKATIONSPRÜFUNG	1
1	United Kingdom	1
1.1	Empire and Commonwealth	1
1.2	Immigration	1
1.3	Global role: EU and Brexit	1
2	India	1
2.1	Partition of British India	1
2.2	Poverty	1
2.3	Language	1
2.4	Technology vs. Backwardsness	1
3	Globalisation	2
3.1	Social aspects	2
3.2	Political aspects	2
3.3	Economic aspects	2
4	United States of America	2
4.1	History	2
4.2	Constitution	3
4.3	Values	4
4.4	Immigration	5
4.5	American dream	6
4.6	Racial issues	6
4.7	Gun laws	8
5	Modern Media	8
5.1	Modern digital media	8
5.2	Web 2.0: opportunities and challenges	8
5.3	English as a global language	8
6	Crooked Letter, Crooked Letter	9
6.1	Ambiguity of belonging	9

KOMMUNIKATIONSPRÜFUNG

SECTION 1

United Kingdom

SUBSECTION 1.1

Empire and Commonwealth

SUBSECTION 1.2

Immigration

SUBSECTION 1.3

Global role: EU and Brexit

SECTION 2

India

SUBSECTION 2.1

Partition of British India

SUBSECTION 2.2

Poverty

SUBSECTION 2.3

Language

SUBSECTION 2.4

Technology vs. Backwardsness

SECTION 3

Globalisation

The focus of globalisation has changed over the years. As it progressed, the world shrunk. People grew more connected and technology evolved.

	1.0	2.0	3.0
time frame	1492–1800	1800–2000	2000–today
size of world	medium	small	tiny
major players	countries	companies	individuals
driving force	countries, governments, (muscle) power	multinational companies	more diverse (non-western, non-white), empowerment through digitalisation
key technology	collaboration, trade, sailing ships	railway, steam engine	digital technology, fiber-optic cable, internet, satellites primary question	Where does country fit in and go global?	Where does company fit in and go global?	Where do I fit in and go global?

Table 1. Change of globalisation over the years

SUBSECTION 3.1

Social aspects

SUBSECTION 3.2

Political aspects

SUBSECTION 3.3

Economic aspects

SECTION 4

United States of America

SUBSECTION 4.1

History

1607 First permanent English settlement at Jamestown (Virginia)

1620 'Pilgrim Fathers' (i.e. English Puritans) found colony at Plymouth (Massachusetts)

1775 - 1783 13 colonies fight the War of Independence against Britain

4.7.1775 The Declaration of Independence is signed

- 1789 US Constitution goes into effect. The former colonies are now the United States of America
- 1803 The Louisiana Purchase: the United States doubles in size
- 1861 - 1865 Civil War; slavery ends in the South
- 1890 The last major battle against Native American tribes. Congress officially declares the frontier closed
- 1917 USA enters World War I (first involvement in a European conflict)
- 1919 Women are given the right to vote
- 1919 Great depression begins
- 1941 USA enters World War II following Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor
- 1945 USA drops atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki
- 1945 Cold War begins as USA and Soviet Union emerge as new world powers
- 1954 US Supreme Court declares segregated schools illegal
- 1955 Civil Rights Movement begins with the Montgomery (Alabama) bus boycott
- 1989 - 1991 Cold War ends with the collapse of the Soviet Union
- 2001 Terrorist attacks on the Pentagon and the World Trade Center
- 2006 US population reaches 300 million
- 2008 Financial crisis begins
- 2008 Barack Obama is elected US President. He is the first African American holding the office (2009 - 2017)
- 2017 Donald Trump becomes the US President. His slogan is 'America First'
- 2020 Storm of the Capitol
- 2021 Joe Biden is elected US President

SUBSECTION 4.2

Constitution

The Declaration of Independence In the Declaration of Independence the thirteen American colonies announced their freedom from British rule. One July 11th 1776, Congress appointed a committee to draft a formal Declaration of Independence. Thomas Jefferson, one of the appointed members, was asked to write the draft, which he completed in about two weeks. The date of its adoption by the Second Continental Congress on July 4th 1776, is celebrated as the birthday of the United States.

Example | When, in the Course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation. We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, –That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness.

The Preamble to the United States Constitution The Preamble to the United States Constitution, beginning with the words “We the People”, is a brief introductory statement of the Constitution’s fundamental purposes and guiding principles. Courts have referred to it as reliable evidence of the Founding Fathers’ intentions regarding the Constitution’s meaning and what they hoped the Constitution would achieve.

Example | We the People of the United States, in Order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defence, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America.

The Bill of Rights The original Constitution of the USA was concerned with the way the new government would be structured and what powers it had. People were worried that the government might become too powerful and autocratic, just like the British king, so a Bill of Rights consisting of ten amendments (i.e. changes) to the Constitution was quickly passed in 1791. These amendments were intended to protect the people from their rulers. The Bill of Rights describes the basic rights of the people and forbids the government from denying these liberties. Included are the freedoms of speech, religion, the press, and the right to assemble. Today the Bill of Rights also serves to protect minorities and individuals from the majority. Altogether there have been 27 amendments to the Constitution.

Amendment I Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances.

Amendment II A well-regulated militia, being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms, shall not be infringed.

Amendment III No soldier shall, in time of peace be quartered in any house, without the consent of the owner, nor in time of war, but in a manner to be prescribed by law.

Amendment IV The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.

SUBSECTION 4.3

Values

Democracy Representative government and the separation of powers in a system of checks and balances are the basis of American Democracy, which should represent American citizen’s interests and be an example to the world.

The Pursuit of Happiness The American Constitution sees it as an unalienable right for every citizen to seek self-fulfilment. The Pursuit of Happiness, together with the right to life and liberty, are at the core of the US American understanding of democracy.

Individual Freedom Americans’ understanding of Individual Freedom is shaped by the Founding Fathers’ belief that all people are equal. Through the US Constitution’s Bill of Rights, the government is responsible for protecting each individual’s basic “inalienable” rights among which are freedom of speech, press, and religion.

Individualism and Self-Reliance Closely connected to the notion of freedom, the idea of Individualism and Self-Reliance encourages American citizens to trust in themselves, their abilities, and their conscience to cope with their individual fate.

Can-Do-Spirit Inventiveness and a tendency to idealize whatever works or is practical illustrate an American's Can-Do-Spirit which is often attributed to the frontier experience where man was left to his own devices when it came to survive in the wilderness.

Equal Opportunities Over centuries, the concept of the American Dream has taught Americans that self-realization can be achieved through hard work, thrift, family loyalty, and faith in free enterprise. Equal Opportunities, however, have not been within reach for all: segregation and discrimination have interfered with indigenous peoples and minorities' attempts to realize the rights and freedoms, which are also guaranteed for them by the Constitution.

Mobility For the US nation of immigrants, in which moving elsewhere and making a fresh start is seen as a practical solution to many a challenge, Mobility can be described as a form of realized optimism promising a better life ahead.

Patriotism Slogans like Proud to be American, the playing of the national anthem at sporting events or the pledging of allegiance, which starts off every school morning, are signs of a heartfelt omnipresent Patriotism which show Americans' intensified sense of national identity and pride in their nation's unique promises.

Progress Americans associate Progress with the idea of making use of the opportunities, which their nation holds in store for them. Hard work and the willingness to make sacrifices for a better tomorrow promise self-realization as well as an increase in material plenty from generation to generation.

National Security In recent years National Security has come into focus. 9/11 left Americans in a state of shock and has made certain rights negotiable (right to privacy) which were formerly undisputed.

SUBSECTION 4.4

Immigration

The English have been going to North America from the late 16th century on; Spain sent people to the southern part of the region and many Dutch and Germans also went over.

When the U.S. became independent, it was written into the Constitution that there could be no limits on immigration until 1808. The main period of immigration was between 1800 and 1917. Early in this period, many immigrants arrived from Britain and Germany, and many Chinese went to California. Later, the main groups were Italians, Irish, Eastern Europeans and Scandinavians. Many Jews came from Germany and Eastern Europe. Just before World War I, there were nearly a million immigrants a year. Many immigrants came to New York and Boston, and Ellis Island, near New York, became famous as a receiving station. The Immigration Act of 1917, and other laws that followed it, limited the number of immigrants and the countries that they could come from. Since then, immigration has been limited to a few people who are selected for an immigrant visa, commonly called green card. Hispanics and Asians now make up the largest group of immigrants.

Immigration policy, including illegal immigration to the United States, was a signature issue of former U.S. president Donald Trump's presidential campaign. He repeatedly said that illegal immigrants are criminals. A hallmark promise of his campaign was to build a substantial wall on the United States- Mexico border and to force Mexico to pay for the wall.

winners	reasons
employers in industries (service, tourism)	cheap labour
consumers	cheap prices
immigrants children	free education
federal government	...
losers	reasons
tax paying (immigrants)	...
local workers	...
unclear	reasons
illegal immigrants	...
community	...

Table 2. Winners and losers of illegal immigrationIllegal immigration

SUBSECTION 4.5

American dream

SUBSECTION 4.6

Racial issues

Since 1640 Slavery is an essential part of cotton and tobacco-growing industries in the South

1775 American War of Independence between Britain and its American colonies begins

1776 Declaration of Independence adopted

1783 American colonies win the War of Independence against Britain

1860 President Abraham Lincoln tries to abolish slavery; Southern States of America try to leave the Union in protest

1861 Northern States of America move on the South to prevent the break-up of the USA; the American Civil War begins

1863 Emancipation Proclamation signed by Abraham Lincoln, freeing all slaves

1865 American Civil War ends with a victory of the Northern States; 13th Amendment to the Constitution makes slavery illegal in the USA

1865 - 1877 Reconstruction era; remaking of the Southern United States after the Civil War

1865/1866 The Black Codes, a set of rules, are passed in the South to “restore all of slavery but its name” southern blacks are

– denied the right to vote

- excluded from certain jobs
 - denied the right to own land
 - prohibited from possessing firearms
- 1866 The Ku Klux Klan is founded, resulting in lynching of and discrimination against blacks well into the 20th century
- 1870 5th Amendment to the Constitution gives all men the right to vote, regardless of race, but Jim Crow Laws make this difficult in reality and segregation of blacks is still the norm in American society
- 1880s - 1920 peak years of black lynchings
- 1896 Supreme Court rules, in Plessy v. Ferguson, that so-called “separate but equal” facilities – including public transport and schools – are constitutional
- WWI Segregated regiments of white and African-Americans fight for the U.S.
- 1916 - 1970 the Great Migration; the movement of six million African Americans out of the rural Southern United States to the urban Northeast, Midwest and West
- WWII ca. 1 mio African-American soldiers fight for the U.S.
- 1950s and 1960s Civil Rights Movement in America, led by Dr Martin Luther King Jr.
 - 1955 Rosa Parks refuses to give up her seat on a bus – Montgomery Bus Boycott begins
 - 1956 Montgomery Bus Boycott ends - buses are no longer segregated
 - 1957 Little Rock Nine escorted into Little Rock High School by federal troopers, signaling the end of segregated education
 - 1963 Martin Luther King leads a march on Washington and delivers the speech “I Have a Dream”
 - 1960s Malcolm X becomes famous leader of Black Muslims; promotion of a separate black state and acceptance of violence as a means of self-defense
 - 1964 Civil Rights Act passed; last of the Jim Crow Laws regarding segregation of Blacks are abolished
 - 1965 Assassination of Malcolm X; President Lyndon B. Johnson signs Voting Rights Act; literacy tests required to be allowed to vote are suspended in order to allow many illiterate southern blacks to vote
 - 1968 Martin Luther King assassinated in Memphis, Tennessee
 - 2008 Barack Obama elected as President of the USA

SUBSECTION 4.7

Gun laws

Gun culture in the US According to reliable estimates there are about 393 million privately owned firearms in the USA. Around 40% of Americans live in a household with a gun, which means that many gun-owners own more than one gun. The USA is the country with the highest gun ownership rate in the world, followed by Yemen and Switzerland.

Guns have played a major role in American history, especially in the settlement of the continent and in the various wars that have been fought by Americans. As a means of self-protection and as a tool for hunting guns were vital to American settlers. In American popular culture, guns have often been depicted in a positive light. Just think of Western movies or the characters played by Arnold Schwarzenegger. At the same time gun ownership has for a long time been a hotly debated topic, each school shooting serving as a trigger of another round of discussions.

Supporters of gun ownership such as the National Rifle Association (NRA) point to the 2nd Amendment to the Constitution and consider every attempt of the government to restrict gun ownership as an encroachment on their personal freedom. Claiming that hundreds of people use guns each year for self-defense, they believe that privately owned guns reduce crime rate rather than causing it. Opponents of gun ownership, on the other hand, point to studies that show a decline in homicides and suicides by firearms after the introduction of stricter gun laws. In addition they maintain that guns in households can easily lead to accidents or an escalation that wouldn't have happened if a gun hadn't been involved.

SECTION 5

Modern Media

SUBSECTION 5.1

Modern digital media

SUBSECTION 5.2

Web 2.0: opportunities and challenges

The Web 2.0 is different from the Web 1.0 in that people can now use portals like YouTube, Instagram or TikTok to put their content out to the world. Previously, a person had to have personal Website or Blog. Maintaining that is a rather tedious task, so enterprises like Google and Meta where founded to take on the job of hosting the servers.

The audience of content creators grew as many people where connected on a single platform and not spread over various Blogs. But now that the enterprises hosted their users data, they technically own it if not specified differently in the terms of use.

Thus, recently there have been new projects trying the build a federated network (called the Web 3.0), which still promises far reach through a common portal but with the option of private data ownership through privately hosted servers.

Opportunities	Challenges
Fast spreading of information	Fast spreading of misinformation
Ability to stay anonymous	Anonymity can be abused
Huge pool of information	Risk of data leakage or doxing
Great diversity in people	Forming of political bubbles
Easy ways to communicate and share personal life	Addictive →mental health issues
New jobs	High emissions through servers using lots of electrical power
Freedom of speech	No general protection from hate speech
Quick access to entertainment	Influencers influencing decision making based on sponsors

Table 3. Opportunities and challenges of the Web 2.0

SUBSECTION 5.3

English as a global language

SECTION 6

Crooked Letter, Crooked Letter

SUBSECTION 6.1

Ambiguity of belonging